Workshops and TA Cafés

Each semester, the Center for Teaching and Learning offer standalone events to contribute to the teaching development of graduate students. Topics range from those relevant to your work as a TA, to preparing teaching-related materials for the job market and your career as a future faculty member with teaching responsibilities. These events are open to all UGA graduate students and postdoctoral scholars. You can join their listserv through this link.

Writing Center

Meet with a writing consultant from the Writing Center in MLC 369 (3rd floor west). Writing Center consultants can assist you with improving your writing in general or work with you to evaluate and develop specific papers, presentations, application letters, etc.

MLC 369 also provide a space for students to write in a studio environment with consultants nearby to assist you if you have specific question. Drop by during tutoring hours or make an appointment through this link:

Peer Tutoring

The Office for Student Success and Achievement offers free undergraduate tutoring services through Peer Learning and Teaching Others (PLaTO). All currently enrolled UGA undergrad students can meet with a Peer Tutor who has successfully completed the course being tutored to discuss class content, ask questions, and share study tips and resources. Tutoring is free and available in the form of one-on-one appointments and study pods both in-person at locations across campus and online via Zoom. More details can be found through this link:
